The Dash

I know of a man who stood to speak at the funeral of a friend.
He referred to the dates on his tombstone,
from the beginning to the end.

He noted that first came the date of birth, and spoke the following date with tears.
But he said that what mattered most of all was the dash between those years

For that dash represents all the time that he spent alive on earth
And now only those who loved him know what that little line is worth.

For it matters not how much we own,
the cars, the house, the cash.
What matters is how we live and love,
and how we spend our dash.

So think about this long and hard,
are there things you would like to change?
For you never know how much time is left that can still be rearranged.

If we could just slow down enough to consider what's true and real,
And always try to understand the way other people feel.

And be less quick to anger,
and show appreciation more.
And love the people in our lives,
like we've never loved before.

If we treat each other with respect, and more often wear a smile.
Remember that this little dash, might only last a while.

So, when your eulogy's being read,
with your life's actions to rehash
Would you be proud of the things they say about the way you spent your dash.

Miss Me - But Let Me Go

When I come to the end of the road,
And the sun has set for me.
I want no rites in a gloom filled room,
Why cry for a soul set free.

Miss me a little, but not too long,
And not with your head bowed low.
Remember the love that we once shared,
Miss me ... but let me go.

For this is a journey that we all must take,
And each must go alone.
It's all a step in the Masters plan
A step on the road to home.

When you are lonely and sick of heart,
Go to the friends we know,
And bury your sorrows in doing deeds,
Miss me dearly family.... but let me go.
